

Illustration of Liberty

1 Corinthians 9

Introduction How quickly it is for us to move from this is my “freedom” to this is my “right.” As we learn of our liberty in Christ and enter into the joy of not being under law, we must guard against the development of a subtle temptation. The temptation is that what I am free to do now becomes my right to do, regardless. When freedom becomes rights, then conflict and division are almost sure to follow.

In an almost strange turn, some at the church in Corinth were challenging Paul’s apostolic authority because he had given up a right for the sake of the gospel. So, having laid down some key principles on Christian Liberty, Paul now shows how he understands these principles to operate in relation to his own ministry. Particularly, Paul is concerned with the financial support of those in vocational Christian service.

The Right to Receive Support (v.1-14)

Paul develops a series of arguments to show why those serving the Lord should be supported by those who are being served. It particularly relates to the apostles, but has broader applications in the larger scope of ministry.

The Prerogatives of Apostolic Office (v.1-6)

Paul uses this opportunity to not only show the necessity for supporting those laboring in the ministry, but to defend his own apostleship.

Defense of His Apostolic Office (v.1-2)

Carefully note the second phrase. Paul asserts that he has seen “Jesus our Lord.” The wording here is unusual. In fact, Paul uses the name Jesus very rarely and usually to refer to Him in His Incarnation. So Paul says, “That I am an apostle is proven by the fact that I have seen the Lord in His physical, but resurrected body.” The church at Corinth seems to be challenging the Apostleship of Paul on these grounds. We can challenge the so-called modern apostleship on the same grounds. Note that his apostleship operates “in the Lord”. If he was not an apostle to any one else, he should be to the Corinthians for he founded the church there.

Development of His Apostolic Privileges (v.3-6)

He lists privileges:

- To the most basic subsistence. We have a right to eat don’t we?
- To the common practice of the apostles. Peter, the brothers of Jesus and the rest of the apostles all have wives (and it is implied that they traveled with them in ministry).
- To the unity of Paul and Barnabas with the rest. Paul and Barnabas are not exceptions to the general rule, are they?

He has the right to be supported because he has a vocational ministry as an apostle.

The Practice of Human Experience (v.7-8a)

Just by observing what people do in their ordinary lives we see that those who labor in a field are expected to be supported by their labor. No soldier pays his own way. Every farmer and shepherd expects to be provided for from his vocation.

In the first part of verse 8, Paul recognizes the non-authoritative nature of his arguments so far. Very few held apostolic office and human experience is not a sure or reliable guide on spiritual matters.

He has the right to be supported because it is the nature of the way things are to be supported by one's vocation.

The Principles of Scriptural Teaching (v.8b-12)

A question we might ask is simply, "Why go back to this text?" The answer lies on Paul's wanting to drive home that the care and concern God demanded when it came to the simple beasts of labor, certainly should not be withheld from people, much less God's servants.

He has the right to be supported because it reflects the care of God and God's people.

The Provision of Priestly Needs (v.13)

Paul shows that the pattern of vocational ministry being supported by those ministered to goes all the way back to the Old Testament Temple. The priests were supported by the tithes and the (literally) offerings of the people. They brought in their wealth and their sacrifices. Many of the sacrifices allowed the priests portions of what was being offered.

He has the right to be supported because it was the principle in the Old covenant as well.

The Precepts of Jesus' Direction (v.14)

Paul argues from Matthew 10:10 where Jesus sends the 12 out into the neighboring areas to proclaim the kingdom. In doing so, they were not to raise all kinds of money or to take along personal wealth, but rather to be supported by those to whom they were preaching.

He has the right to be supported because Jesus taught it and commanded it in His own ministry.

But now that he has firmly grounded his defense of the right to be supported, he goes on to show why he gave up that right.

The Responsibility in Refusing Support (v.15-27)

Here is the right (and it was a liberty) that Paul had. But he had chosen not enforce that right in regards to the church at Corinth.

For the Sake of the Ministry (v.15-23)

The gospel is the heart beat of Paul.

The Responsibility in Proclamation (v.15-18)

Note

A very direct translation of the Greek which captures this would read like this, “To me it is better to die than... the boast of mine no one shall empty (shall void).” There is a strong emotion here. Paul would rather die than, what? Receive support from the church at Corinth so that they could void his boast in not being self-supporting.

These verses are somewhat obscure in their wording and difficult in the way they are constructed. What they try to get across?

- Support is not to treated as a way to reward the messenger. The church is not to treat support as a reward for voluntary service. It is an obligation, but not one that Paul is expecting. He is not serving as a volunteer, but as a steward.
- Support is not to be used as a way to manipulate the message. Paul is a steward of Christ and his accountability for the Gospel is to God. His stewardship and obligation is to preach the gospel. His reward for not accepting support is the freedom of proclamation and the liberty from obligation it gives him.

Think about this last sentence. The (NIV) misses the full force of what Paul is saying by not translating the word gospel every time it occurs. “What then is my reward? That when I preach the gospel, I may offer the gospel without charge, so as not to make full use of my right in the gospel.” In other words, while the church at Corinth is concerned about wanting to exert their rights, Paul is concerned about the preaching of the gospel.

1
4

Now this concern carries over in the next paragraph as Paul identifies his evangelistic strategy.

The Responsibility to People (v.19-23)

Paul gives an underlying principle on which his conduct is based. His great objective is to win the lost. To that aim, he does the following:

- To the Jews, he lives as a Jew under the Jewish law in order that he might win those who were under the Law even though he is free from Jewish Law.
- To the Gentile, he lives as a gentile without the Jewish Law, but under the Law of Christ, that he might win those who do not have the Law.
- To the weak, he lives as though his conscience were sensitive to the same issues in order to win them.

The principle is that Paul will, within the Law of Christ, culturally identify with and accommodate to his audience so as to gain the hearing of all the lost and see God save some. Paul understood that this would open himself to the criticism that he was inconsistent. But he was following the example of Christ who, in carrying out this principle in His own ministry, was accused by the Pharisees of being a drunkard and glutton.

The point Paul makes to the church at Corinth is this, “You need to give up your rights in order to edify the weaker saints; I choose to give up my rights in order to evangelize the sinners.” It is hard for us to think in these categories because, while we are concerned for edification, we have too little a concern for evangelism.

Paul did everything for the sake of the gospel so that he might be a co-participant in its reward and blessing.

For the Sake of the Minister

(v.24-27)

He has refused support for the sake of the ministry of the gospel. Now he turns to the minister of the gospel.

This discussion is carried along with an extended illustration. Paul loved athletics. He used it often in his illustrative material. (And he can be forgiven to not using soccer.) In doing so, the personal lesson is driven home with real force.

Principles for the Minister

(v.24-25)

There are two principles which Paul illustrates by an analogy to sports.

- The future objective is a prize. There is a goal toward which they were striving. The runners were all running in order to receive the prize. The prize they received was a garland or a wreath of vines and flowers which would fade and decay. But we are striving for a prize which is an incorruptible crown. The point here is that we must be involved in serving Christ striving toward the prize of a crown in eternity.
- The present need is self-discipline. The mark of truly great athletes is daily self-disciplines in pursuit of defined objectives. The goal of an incorruptible crown in eternity means that we discipline ourselves for ministry today. Discipline for competition, just as for ministry, means denying good things in pursuit of the better and best. It also means training, team work, enduring hardship and pain.

In my coaching of soccer, I used to tell the athletes, “Practice and training and running and drills are not meant to be fun. They are hard, grinding, laborious and sometimes boring. But they are the daily disciplines that lead to a season of victories. You will rarely rise on the playing field above the level of your work on the practice field.” It is little different in ministry. You want to serve God? You want that crown? Then today there has to be the self-discipline of training, practice, correction, and sometimes grinding, boring details. It will require giving up much in order to achieve more.

So how did Paul turn these principles into his own practice of ministry?

Practices of the Minister

- I serve in such a way as to be effective in that which I am serving. See how he says this? I do what I do in such a way as not to be out of my lane or flailing around. I strive to be effective.
- I discipline myself in such a way as to not be disqualified. How many people do we know today who were serving God in the past but have washed out by being disqualified by sin?

In an Olympics not so long ago most of these principles were clearly illustrated. The USA lost a gold medal in the 4x100 relay because an inexperienced runner was adjusting the baton in his leg. I watched two boxing matches where the wild swinging of some of the boxers cost them matches as their opponent scored on counter punches. And we saw tremendous athletes overcoming amazing obstacles through discipline and determination to achieve their prize. And many of us remember when the great British sprinter Linford Christie disgraced himself by an inappropriate response to being disqualified in the 100 meter sprint.

We must not lose sight of our overall context. Paul is addressing his rights as an office bearer in the church and his giving up those rights for the sake of the gospel. The very willingness to give up much is driven the greatness of what he was striving for. The lesson here is not to find something great to strive for. This is not a message on Christian self-motivation. The lesson here is for self-denial and self-discipline for the sake of gospel and the glory of God.

Conclusion

- The mark of the true Christian servant is one who will argue strongly for Christian liberty and then be willing to give it up for the sake of the gospel.
- The effective proclamation of the gospel is an overarching principle in liberty. We must be free to be culturally relevant so as to reach the lost with the gospel while obeying the law of Christ.
- We must identify effective strategies for evangelism. And we must do so in our own cultural milieu. Will you not begin to think with me about ways we can reach the lost in our community?
- Self-discipline and self-denial, while not the most popular topics in Christian circles today, are essential ingredients for effective ministry.

May God cause us to extend ourselves, give up our liberty and train with real endurance to become effective proclaimers of the gospel.

---

Notes